8:45-10:00am "Scientific Trial Preparation"
Daniel W. Dugan, Ph.D.
Trial Science, Inc., Reno, NV

Attorneys face a dilemma when they have to present information to their audience. That dilemma is that their audience cannot give them feedback on how they are doing until it is too late to make adjustments. Actors, speakers, and athletes who have to perform in front of audiences get constant and instant feedback, but the legal profession prevents that for their "performers." This seminar teaches attorneys how focus groups and mock trials can assist them in 1) making their presentations understandable to their audience, 2) learning how people process, understand and comprehend the issues of their cases, and 3) learning which types of people might be biased against their side of the case.

10:00-10:15am Networking & Break with Exhibitors

10:15-11:00am "10 Practical Tips for Trial Attorneys"
Judge James L. Kimbler (Retired)
Retired Judge, Medina County Common Pleas Court

Retired Judge James L. Kimbler presents 10 practical tips for trial attorneys. This seminar is based on his book, Practical Tips for Trial Attorneys: A Conversation with Judge James L. Kimbler (Retired) published by Sigel Press. The seminar will focus on practical advice that only an experienced trial judge can give. Unlike law school classes on trial advocacy, Judge Kimbler's seminar discusses practical topics like the importance of knowing the "book" on the judge who is handling your case, the importance of researching the venue in which your case will be tried; the importance of establishing good relationships with judicial support staff, and more. Copies of Judge Kimbler's book will also be available for purchase at a special discount for OACTA members.

2:45-3:45pm "The Art of Conversation and Picking Your Best Juries"
Douglas M. McIntosh, Esq.
McIntosh Sawran & Cartaya, P.A.
Fort Lauderdale, FL
Sponsored by: DRI

Florida trial lawyer Douglas M. McIntosh explores how to make true connections with prospective jurors without being invasive during voir dire. In today's climate of pronounced pessimism, when there are daily attacks on the value and worth of the judicial system and the right to jury trial, McIntosh draws on his over 35 years of trial practice, as well as his work with direct selling business techniques, to show his audience how to "break the ice" with timid or skeptical jurors, by using the art of conversation. By sharing techniques he has learned over the years, the seminar participant can find out how the change of a single juror in the composition of a jury can change the result accomplished, and how truly conversing with people during jury selection can facilitate that desired result.
